CHURCHILL, CONTRARY AS EVER,

Is Determined to Run for the House of Commons in Birmingham.

CHAMBERLAIN IN A TERRIBLE STATE. Smith Barry's New Scheme Terrifles Because of Its Legality.

Hot weather can't knock out the activity in English politics. Randolph Churchill's obstinacy in determining to stand for the House of Commons has aroused the opposi-

ment's attempts to head off Smith Barry's new scheme are also quite interesting. (BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.) LONDON, July 13 .- [Copyright.]-Politics are active, in spite of the hot weather, the Shah and the rush of social functions generally. Lord Randolph Churchill's natural cussedness has come out in his professed intention to run for the House of Commons in Central Birmingham, and Mr. Turnecat Chamberlain, who feels that Birmingham belongs to him, and who is hated by Churchill, is in a very terrible state of emotion. He wants the Tory leaders, who depend on the votes of himself and other disloyal Gladstonians, to coax or force Churchill to change his mind. But Churchill has been snubbed all around. He feels badly, is not loving anybody, and just wants to make himself disaagreeable, so that it will probably be hard to influence him. Brother Chamberlain is not alone in his grief, his Tory friends are all in about as pleasant a state of irritation as so many teething babes, for the Irish leaders have developed a new plan to thwart the schmes of the Irish landlords.

SMITH BARRY'S SCHEME. Last week I wrote of Landlord Smith Barry's efforts to form a syndicate of rentrackers, these to discourage all proposals for arbitration and by united action, to force the tenants to such terms as even the law courts would not impose upon them.

William O'Brien, the real workingman of the Irish party, had already thought over a combination of tenants to defeat that of landlords when I wrote last week, and now has his plan in working order. Sexton is now drafting resolutions concerning the new plan, which will be discussed, and beyond all doubt adopted by Parnell and the leading Irishmen on Monday.

The great danger to the Tories lies in the perfect legality of the proposed combina-tion, even from an English standpoint, and in the fact that, unlike the plan of campaign, it will be a national affair, and have the unanimous support of the Irish party. Folnnanimous support of the Irish party. Following are extracts of the statement made by William O'Brien in Dublin, which and sleeping car accommodations at once. give an idea of his most important development in the policy of the Irish leaders:

A STRONG COMBINATION. Rich Irish landlords and English aristo erats have clubbed together to overwhelm, by force of money and coercion, the body of tenants, upon the justice of whose claims they dare not take the judgment of any dis-passionate tribunal. Smith Barry and Colonel Saunderson have claimed that every Irish landlord has the right to combine with every other landlord for that purpose. All that the new organization claims is that combination, to prevent the extermination of tenants whose claims the landlords dare what is terrifying the landlords and toercionists most is the absolute legality of the new movement. Its chief feature will he the raising of a vast national fund to pre-vent the evicted tenant from being driven into the workhouse. The issues raised are precisely similar to those of trades unionism here. On the Ponsonby estate, for instance the people to whom the law has given a joint property in their holdings, who have themselves built their houses and reclaimed their fields, have a dispute with their land-

BOUND TO PREVENT SETTLEMENT. Just as the contending parties were on the point of settlement, there steps in this body of wealthy landlords, most of whom are complete strangers to this country, and deliberately wrecks that settlement, in the hope of terrifying Irish tenants from ever combining again. The tenants have always been willing, and are still willing, to leave their disputes to arbitration, as they are on every State on which the struggle is pro-ceeding. The landlords, on the other hand, have shirked arbitration. In point of fact, on every campaign State for the last 18 months it has not been a question of the justice of the tenants' claims, but of a vindictive attempt of the landlords and Government to ruin these tenants because will never mention a word of arbitration until the British electors can have an opportunity of acting as arbitrators.

CAN'T SEE ITS WEIGHT.

In spite of the landlords and their coercionist backers, the Government has not failed to appreciate the dangerous character of this latest Irish move. The Tories are already hinting at martial law, and the landlords are assured that Balfour will never desert them if they will band together backers, the Government has not and fight. Similar hints were given and promises made when the plan of campaign was started, and some landlords, Lord Clanticarde among the number, put on a bold front, only to find themselves deserted in the hour of need. The same thing will occur again.

The public opinion of England, to which

The public opinion of England, to which Balfour, like others, must surrender, will not tolerate absolute martial law in Ireland, and without that new popular uprising cannot be effectively opposed.

This week's development in the Parnell Commission, which bids fair to sit on forever, is rather startling, as it involves the possible withdrawal of Mr. Parnell and his counsel from the case. Not content with doing things by halves, Sir Charles Russell, on Parnell's behalf, was proceeding to-day to show that the entire "Parnellism and Crime" series in the Times was part of a general conspiracy, tion to renewed activity, and the Governgeneral conspiracy,

FOUNDED ON PIGGOTT'S LIES, ought by Houston with Times' money, when to every one's amazement the Judges declined to order the production of papers necessary to prove these facts.

After ordering bank books, private letters and every conceivable document in the possession of Parnellite members or National League officers to be produced to please the Times' lawyers, the so-called impartia on the flimsy ground that the duty of the Court was to ascertain whether the Times' documents were true-not where they came from or who paid for them.

It is in the face of this unfair treatment that Parnell has decided to withdraw his counsel and abandon the attempt to obtain justice from such a one-sided There seems to be no doubt that this deter mination will be adhered to, unless the judges reconsider their unjust decision. Without Russell and Parnell as active factors, the Parnell Commission would be come a much drearier tarce even than it is

WASHBURN ALL RIGHT. Friend Makes an Authentic States That He is Fluencially Sound-He

Was Somewhat Embarrasse but Has Pulled Through. NEW YORK, July 13 .- Stories which have been widely published over the country in reference to the financial embarrassments of Senator W. D. Washburn, of Minnesota, are made the subject of an authoritative statement here to-day by Thomas Lowry, of Minneapolis, who has been his business associate. Senator Washburn sailed for Europe on Wednesday, before the publica-tion of the stories affecting his credit.

Answering an inquiry about the alleged sale of Senator Washburn's house to him for $40,000, which the Senator was said to for $40,000, which the Senator was said to require to pay interest on his debts, Mr. Lowry said: "There is no truth whatever in the statement. Senator Washburn's house is not deeded to me, and never has been. I never loaned him $40,000 to pay interest on his loans, and never was advised that he was in need of that amount for such a purpose. pose. As to buying the Senator's house, I can frankly say that it is about all I can do to support the one I now live in."
"What is there about Senator Washburn's

"It has all passed. A few months ago he was somewhat embarrassed, owing to the fact that his time was occupied in politics instead of paying close attention to his various business interests. He, however, promptly converted securities which he had in hand, and paid all maturing obligations. Senator Washburn is financially sound, and his moral and personal integrity is such that he would sacrifice the last dollar he possessed to pay a hundred cents on the dollar."
